

16th JENNER GLYCOBIOLOGY & MEDICINE SYMPOSIUM

11-13th
JUNE
2024

WELCOME

It is an honour to invite you to the 16th Jenner Glycobiology & Medicine Symposium.

The 16th symposium will continue to create an international space for researchers and clinicians to discuss leading-edge findings in the fields of glycobiology, glycoimmunology, and glycomedicine.

We are excited for you to join this conference.

The Organizing Committee (2024/25)

IMPORTANCE OF GLYCOSCIENCE

Glycobiology is a rising field in the health and pharmaceutical industry due to its significance in drug design and pathology.

Glycosylation is vital in many biological processes, and changes in glycans can be linked to diseases such as cancer, diabetes, autoimmune and neurodegenerative diseases.

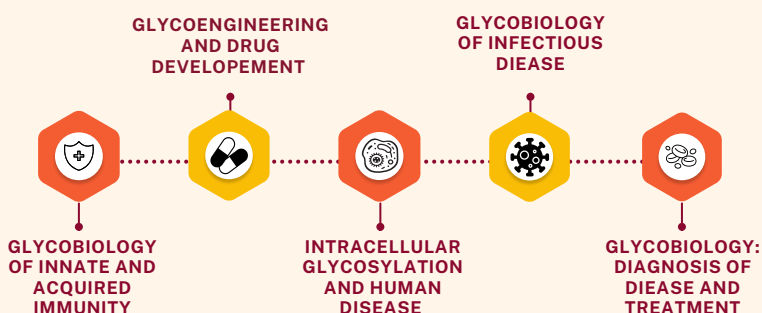

Glycosylation has an effect on the pharmacological properties of biotherapeutics, such as drug stability, bioavailability, and immunogenicity. 76% of therapeutic proteins approved by the FDA in 2023 were glycosylated.

TOPICS OF GLYCOBIOLOGY AND MEDICINE

The program is devoted to addressing and integrating different aspects of glycobiology in physiological and pathological settings, including immunology, infection, cancer and neurological disorders.

In addition to internationally renowned speakers, a number of posters and talks will be selected from the submitted abstracts.

BENEFITS FOR PARTNERS

Listen to researchers, government representatives, and industry professionals.
